COOLIDGE "NICE LITTLE MAN" SAYS SPEAKER

LaFollette Is Sevrely Criticized at Meting of Bankers Wenesday

Manufacturer Declares He Is Nation's Great Liability—Bankers Hear Expressions of Opposition to Government Ownership of Railroads by Railroad President

CHICAGO, Oct. 1. — Senator Robert M. LaFollette and his progressive platform came in for bitter denunciation again today at the second general session of the Fiftieth annual convention of The American Bankers Association here.

The Wisconsin senator himself was characterized as "the nation's" greatest liability" by John E. Edgerton, president of The National Association of Manufacturers.

C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Railroad Company, scored his policies and all others contemplating federal control and operation of the nation's basic industries.

These two were the principal speakers at today's session at which a major portion of the time was to be given over to hearing the report of the nominating committee, appointed yesterday, and the election of officers.

Edgerton hailed the progressive standard-bearer as an "arch demagogue" who is kept in power by the "spontaneous responsiveness of the egotistic inhuman nature."

"It is this element in human nature that makes his art so popular and so dangerous," Edgerton continued. "Except for that he and all the other demagogues in the forum, on the rostrum and in the pulpit, all vocational agitators, professional politicians and fake reformers would be compelled to find some useful employment for their mis-applied talents.

"The Wisconsin senator has multiplied all the elements of distrust and suspicion, prejudice and hatred, discontent and vegeance and has brot them together into a dangerous power. This genius from Washington is normal only when he is normal and is happy only when nspicuous as a destruction an obstructonist."

Edgerton then went into the question "at is wrong with the United St" and among the ills he listed of primary importance "the ghtful loss of sight of the spirit values in the fog of materialis which has settled upon us and the loss of sense of individual re onsibility in our reckless strifes for advantage."

He exp sed opposition to government terference in the operation of vate enterprise and denounced gislation passed only as political dder, designed to gather votes. e also scored the child labor a ndment as "a rose that enfolds tarantula."

"It meant to restrict production a to compel uneconomic advances t wages as well as to expand e powers of the federal goverent," he said.

"It o will require the creation of mo public offices and a further excus for raising the cost of governmt.

"The menaces could not affect an ehtened country except for the ct that 70 per cent of the quaied voters are taking no intere in their government. This 70 r cent includes for the most par the more responsible elements of ciety. The minority that does mo of the voting is generally radal in thot."

arkham's address was in the sae vein. He declared that the rroads would be found in the ft line of defense against "those o would make this country a ond Russia."

REPUBLICANS LOSE OUT TO PROGRESSIVES

Brookhart of Iowa Bolts Ticket with Demand that Dawes Be Removed as Candidate

NORRIS TO FOLLOW

Senator Hiram Johnson of California Also Expected to Get in Line Behind LaFollette

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart's spectacular bolt from the Republican reservation with a "Demand" that the Republican managers remove General Charles G Dawes from the ticket created excitement in the capital today. It worries party leaders more than they care to admit—publicly.

While the Republican managers have never counted on Brookhart throwing his undeniable strength in Iowa to the national ticket, they, nevertheless have confidently counted upon his remaining comparatively quiet and not embarrassing President Coolidge politically.

Now that hope has been dissipated and they were even more perturbed today by reports from apparently authentic sources that Senator Brookhart will shortly follow up his denunciation of Dawes by coming out openly for the Lafollette-Wheeler independent ticket.

When it is remembered that virtually all political prophets, irrespective of party have confided that Brookhart will be re-elected in Iowa by an excess of 100,000 votes, the perturbation of the Republican managers over his defection from the national ticket may well be understood.

Sources close to the LaFollette candidacy asserted with confidence today that Brookhart will be openly aligned with the independent movement before the campaign is many days older. Even

SHIPS SUNK AND LIVES LOST IN STORM ALONG SEABOARD

NORFOLK, Va., Oct 1.—Two vessels, victims of the gale that swept up from the Florida peninsula, probably have sunk off th North Carolina coast, according to reports received here today.

One, the Norwegian steamer Ringborg, 2,675 gross tons, abandoned by her crew 20 miles off the Frying Pan gas buoy, was enroute for Cuba from New York. Her crew is safe aboard the Norwegian steamer Enare, bound for Charleston.

The four-masted wooden schooner Perry Setzer, of Bridgeport, Conn., 1,392 tons gross, was also abandoned by her crew off Beaufort, N. C., and the men taken ashore in a heavy sea by life savers. They were landed at Port Macon.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Thre known dead, a train wrecked by a washout, dozens of narrow escapes and heroic rescues, bridges swept away and property damage running well into the hundreds of thousands was the record of loss being compiled here today as a result of drenching rains which swept central southern and northern New York since Saturday.

Ther was a slight break in the rainfall during the night. Shortly before 7 o'clock this morning the rain fell again, threatening greater loss.

At Lyons, a power company employe died from burns when a storm tossed high tension wire nearly electrocuted him

At Utica a 10-year-old boy fell into Nail creek and was drowned

Near Oswego, a woman, leaping from her automobile, stalled in a creek, was swept under and drowned.

At Sabatlis, N. Y., the first section of Adirondack train Number 4 on the New York Central piled up in a ditch early today after leaving the rails, due to a washout.

Expect Dawes to Make Reply at Kansas City

CHICAGO, Oct. 1—A reply to Senator Smith W. Brookhart's demand for his resignation as vice presidential candidate probably will be made by General Charles G. Dawes in his address at Kansas City tomorrow night, the nominee indicated here today

He refused to discuss the Brookhart letter today except to say:

"Anything which I may have to say, will be said from the platform."

General Dawes will leave Chicago tonight for a three day's speaking tour of Iowa, Missouri and Indiana, during which he will make seven 10 minute addresses from the rear platform of his special train and two major night speeches, one at Kansas City and the other at Fort Wayne.

M'COOK, Nebr., Oct. 1.—United States Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, today refused to comment upon the declaration of Senator Smith W Brookhart, of Iowa, that Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice-presidential candidate "had wrecked the Republican campaign, especially in the northwest," and that Norris should be substituted in Dawes stead.

Norris said that rumors of his intention to come out later for Senator LaFollette were without

MISSING BOY WAS IN OHIO REPORT SAYS

NEW YORK, Oct. 1—Tangible evidence that Franklin Roshek, 14, missing eight days, is alive and not kidnaped, came to his parents today in a telegram from Hudson, Ohio.

The message sent by O. W. Heck telegraph operator in the Pennsylvania railroad station there, said two boys, one saying his name was Roshek and appearing to be about 14 years old, had been seen last Thursday in the depot.

The telegrapher said both admitted they were from New York, had come to Ohio thru Cleveland then were bound for Pittsburgh, Pa., by way of freight trains.

Police here communicated immediately with the Pittsburgh police and the authorities of the principal towns between Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

It was learned that, on the day of the boy's disappearance, he was seen in the museum of national history, eagerly inspecting exhibits having to do with life in the wilds His father believed he was thus attempting to fit himself for some sort of adventurous expedition after which boys of his age hanker

Detectives learned that Franklin was a frequent visitor to the museum, where his interest centered upon out of doors matters and weapons.

URGE VOTERS TO MAKE USE OF SUFFRAGE

Statewide Campaign on Foot to Get Every Voter to Polls on Election Day

INDIFFERENCE SERIOUS

Declare Large Class of Voters Who Refuse to Exercise Right Is Menace to Country

BY WM. J. HUSKE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1—With election day less than five weeks distant and the first day of registration tomorrow in the registration cities of Ohio, the most intensive campaign ever staged having for its object the securing of a full vote in the presidential, state, district and county elections or November 4, next, was under way thruout the state today.

Pointing to the menace to the government of the existence of a large class of qualified voters who consistently refuse to exercise the right of suffrage, civic organizations were behind the movement to induce the negligent and indifferent to register in order that they may participate in the choice of national and state officers next month.

In Cleveland, Lakewood, East Cleveland, Cleveland Heights and other registration cities of Cuyahoga-co, the boy scout troops had been enlisted to awaken people to their duties as citizens. Early today the scouts started out ringing doorbells, and attempting to secure the pledges of householders to turn out and register tomorrow.

"Vote November 4. Vote as you please, but vote," was the message they were delivering in the state and nationwide campaign.

It was pointed out that nowhere in Ohio was more indifference displayed than in Cleveland and its suburbs. It was estimated by election board officials that in Cleveland alone there were approximate-

Congressman Declares Republicans Dare Not Show Their Candidate

Says Public Conception of Nation's Leader Is False—Mellon Controls President—Declares Republicans Stand for Class Privilege—Are Responsible for Radical Third Party

Thru its championship of special interest and a privileged class, the Republican party is directly responsible for the existence of the radical element represented in the coming election by LaFollette, Congressman James E. Aswell of Louisiana a Democrat charged in his speech at Central high school auditorium Tuesday evening.

Congressman Aswell was sent here to take the place of Senator King of Utah, who was obliged to cancel his speaking engagement because of illness. Mrs. Mary Tully of Columbus and Carl Valentine a Columbus attorney were also on the program.

The speakers were introduced to a small audience of 100 or 125 persons by George D. Kline. Kline commented on the present lack of interest in the presidential campaign, and declared he was confident that a great deal more enthusiasm will be shown before the campaign is over.

Congressman Aswell, who was first introduced, was a well built man, past middle age, with a full head of gray hair, and a pleasing personality. The Southern roll to his speech made him a trifle difficult to understand at times, but he had a pleasing voice and with his convincing manner of delivery he soon had his small audience with him, and it listened attentively thruout. He has been elected congressman seven times, four times without opposition, according to Chairman Klein's statement.

His talk dealt wholly with the national campaign. He declared the issues are clear and the position of the candidates easily stated.

"The ractionary forces are represented by the Republicans. Mellon, Coolidge and Dawes represent the protected interests and the special privilege class," he declared. "Mellon proves that by his conduct. Coolidge is hesitant and apologetic. Dawes openly champions the protected interests. He believes the ordinary citizen is nothing but a 'ham.' He looks upon the ordinary man with contempt. In his New York speech he declared the congressmen who supported the farm relief and bonus bills were plain 'dumb.' They are trying to detract attention from the real issue in the campaign, corruption in office.

"Coolidge is afraid to speak plainly, but he says 'Me too, Charley.'

"It is this reactionary party that has called into existence LaFollette and his radical ideas. The result will be a Democratic president. Standpatism always causes a third party. There is never a third party when the Democrats are in control. The Republicans are directly responsible for the LaFollette radicals.

"The Democratic party represents the American spirit. It is neither reactionary or radical. In my travels over the country, I find many Republicans who will admit they are ashamed and dazed at the corruption in the present administration."

Aswell charged the Republicans with the responsibility for all the industrial and economic troubles from 1918 on. Altho a Dmocratic president was in office in 1918, he declares the Republicans controlled both houses and obstructed all constructive measures. He charged them with literally assassinating Wilson. "They did everything

Fliers Injured When Plane Hits Two Story House

DAYTON, O., Oct. 1—Lieutenant H A. Johnson of McCook Field and W. F. Gearhardt, are recovering today at McCook Field hospital from injuries sustained about six o'clock last night in a crash which carried their airplane into the home of Ralph Sweigert and family. The had concluded a test flight and were heading for the field at a altitude of 75 feet. Something happened. One wing hit a telephone pole, the "air bus" swerved and the smash came.

Johnson and Gearhardt received a number of broken bones and many lascerations but will recover. The plane was wrecked and the two-story frame house looks like it had been hit by a locomotive.

Fifteen Nice Days in Sept. Lots of Rain

A report of the weather conditions during the month of September was given today by George Leonard, local weather observer.

The rainfall for the month was 4 87 inches.

The highest temperature was 98 degrees on the first day of the month, the lowest temperature was 37 degrees on the fifth day.

There were 15 clear days, seven partly cloudy days and eight cloudy days

Frost was noticed on five days.

Danger of Too Many Educated Persons False

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1 — Attempting to quiet the fears of the "Alarmists," who forsee a day when there will be too many educated persons, so that no one would be left as a "hewer of wood or a drawer of water." Dr. W. O Thompson, president of Ohio State University, in his annual address to the student body and faculty today, declared such conception of the future was illogical

"Grave concern in the minds of some persons," he said, "has arisen from a certain intellectual aristocracy that seems to linger in the mind of most of us who have been favored largely at public expense with an education which we otherwise would not have acquired. Such fears are undemocratic."

Dr. Thompson praised the present day student, remarking that he believed "the incoming freshmen are, on the whole, better prepared than the present faculty was when it entered college."

Two Bankruptcy Petitions Filed

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—Two voluntary petitions of bankruptcy were filed in federal court here today. They were: Julius G. Berdel, of 2015 West Tuscarawas-st., Canton, who listed his liabilities at $36,959 99 and assets at $28,050 05, and Lucian Cox a laborer, of Akron, who listed his liabilities at $8,543 39 and assets at $110.

Berdel did not give his occupation in his petition.

Two Ribs Broken by Horse's Kick

Henry Geib, of near Fresno was seriously injured when kicked by a horse at his home, last Friday. Two of Mr. Geib's ribs were broken. He was also severely bruised about the body and head by being hurled against a stone wall of his barn when the horse kicked him.

Dr. M. T. Moorehead was called and attended the injured man. Mr. Geib is reported to be improving satisfactorily.

Kiwanians Hear Report of Meet from Delegates

The three delegates from the local Kiwanis organization to the state convention on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 22, 23 and 24, gave reports at the noonday meeting Wednesday. The reports were very nearly complete and were satisfactory in every detail.

Dr J. G. Smailes, in a brief talk on the subject of the life of a doctor, spoke of the rapid advances made in the medical profession in the way of discoveries of medicines.

Dr. Smailes declared that in his opinion people are coming back to the real family doctor and abandoning thep ractice of employing several specialists to do what one family physician could probably do.

An exceedingly interesting talk on the philosophy of life was madeb y Carl O. McGinnis. He set out what he believed to be the ideal manner of living one should follow in order to always be prepared for the work that is his to do and in order to attain success in life.

JAMES HOUSE DIES AT ONE O'CLOCK WED

James E. House, aged 82, Civil War veteran, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Amore, on the West Lafayette road, Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The cause of the aged man's death was lung trouble and infirmities.

Mr. House was born May 2, 1842. Practically all of his life was spent in this county. For the past few years he has, however, been an inmate of the State Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, at Sandusky. About six weeks ago he was brot to the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Amore, where he has been in rapidly failing health since.

James E. House saw four years' service in the War of the Rebellion, as a member of Company H, 80th regiment. He went with Sherman on the march to the sea, and fought in the siege of Vicksburg.

Surviving are four sons and three daughters, Florus E., John W., Lester, Edward and Mrs. Allen Conger, all of this city, Mrs. Belle Ruby, of near Plainfield, and Mrs. Lloyd Amore, on the West Lafayette road. Mrs. House died about ten years ago. Three sisters also survive, Mrs. Sarah E Chamberlain and Mrs. Nancy De Long, of this city, and Mrs. Mary E. Rogers, of Warsaw.

Mr. House was a member of the U. B. church, of this city, where the funeral services will be held. Definite funeral arrangements had not been completed, Wednesday afternoon.

Nellie Proctor Asking Divorce

Failure to provide is named as ground for divorce in a petition filed in common pleas court by Nellie A. Proctor vs. Floyd Proctor. The plaintiff avers she has been compelled to live on the charity of relatives and by her own exertions, because of his "idleness, profligacy and dissipation."

They were married at Cambridge on May 15, 1921, and have no children, the petition states.

The plaintiff is represented by Attorney R. B. McDermott.

Ethel Trippey Seeks Divorce

Ethel Trippey is seeking a divorce from James Trippey on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. These charges are contained in a petition filed in common pleas court recently.

Restoration to the name of Countryman is asked.

Attorneys H. R. Miller and R. B. McDermott represent the plaintiff.

Mayor Orders Bikes to Stay Off Sidewalks

Several accidents caused by bicycle riding on the sidewalks, altho of minor importance, caused Mayor H. B. Heaton today to issue a warning to all boys to stop this practice.

The mayor is aware of the fact that it is dangerous at times to ride a bicycle in the street but there is a city ordinance that protects the pedestrian from such danger on the sidewalks

Strike of Sugar Workers Feared

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 1—A general strike of sugar mill workers which threatens to become sympathetic and halt the machinery of all Cuban industries, loomed today as labor leaders of the sugar mill workers' union started a movement to keep all laborers from reporting to work when the mills open unless "radical increases in pay and shorter hours" are granted by employers.

The general strike, they said, will be called at the opening of "Zafra," the time for sugar mills to begin operations, a few weeks hence.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT

The worm has turned and the beaten path has been staked with the familiar detour sign in Sandusky, O., divorce court proceedings.

Precedent was established in Common Pleas Judge Williams court when Leonard Rosswurm, suing for divorce, asked that his wife, the defendant, be allowed "reasonable alimony."

Judge Williams granted the divorce and ordered Rosswurm to pay his former wife $10 a week "until further notice." He called attention to the unusual clause in the plaintiff's petition saying it was the first time he hadd ever known of the court being asked to award alimony to the defendant.

COLUMBUS—Building of concentration yards at important livestock shipping points in Ohio is planned by cooperative groups of the state to further strengthen their market program, it was learned today. The concentration yards will be used largely for gathering livestock and grading livestock received so that itt may move directly to packers without going to terminal markets. A program calling for establishment of such yards was approved by stockholders of the Eastern States Company, which is owned by cooperative groups in Ohio and adjoining states.

BELLAIRE—Fire Chief Gratz remarked to persons in his office one morning recently that the department had NOT been called out for a week and expressed the wish it might continue to enjoy the idle period. This said, the alarm was heard, calling all departments to the municipal building. There it was found that some of the prisoners in the hold over, having become chilly, ignited a pile of papers in the cell. The blaze was extinguished without damage.

MARTINS FERRY—W. Theodore Snodgrass 75, was found dead in his grocery here just two hours after his friend, Edward Saunders 45, tin plate roller, succumber in a hospital to pneumonia, following an operation. Both were members of the volunteer fire department, Masonic lodge and Methodist church

POMEROY—Jesse Little, of Pitymer, who recently broke away from the state prison farm at London, O., is reported hiding in old coal mines near his home. Persons who claim to have seen him in the mines said he disappeared when aware he was noticed. A reward of $50 for his arrest has been offered.

DEFIANCE—Miss Leona Johnson received the most votes in the contest for selection as "Miss Defiance County" and so will have the honor of presiding over the historical pageant here in which a cast of 15,000 county residents will depict the history of Defiance.

BUCYRUS — Denzel F Collins, arrested in Detroit and brought to Bucyrus to face a charge of embezzling $1,920 from the Bucyrus Tobacco and Candy Co., of which he was manager, was released when he apeared before Mayor Schuler and pleaded not guilty R. E Feichter, Toledo, former manager of the company and part owner, was prosecuting witness, but did not appear at the hearing.

WHEELING, W. Va.—Richland Coal Co., interests in this city have purchased the Otto-Marmet Coal and Mining Co, the Black Betsy Coal Co., and the Marmet-Hamel Coal Co., producers of the high-grade Raymond coal at mines on the Kanawha river, 18 miles from Charleston, for approximately $2,500,000, according to the announcement of the local office. The deal includes 8,000 acres of coal, river steamers, barges and terminals, the latter at Cincinnati.

NELSONVILLE — Mrs Mary Rideneur, 65, of Pomeroy, recently made an eventful trip to visit relatives. She had lived in sight of a railroad most of her life, but on the trip here she rode on a train for the first time. While here, she also was taken on her first ride in an electric car.

COLERAIN—Two hundred residents of this vicinity signed a petition asking Belmont county commissioners to have state law against speeding and petting parties along the Martins Ferry, pike enforced. The commissioners will refer their request to the sheriff, it was believed.

One district of Ecuador has been yielding petroleum more than 400 years and experts now are trying to ascertain the extent of the deposits with a view to extensive exploitation.

Flood Isolates Towns in Penna.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 1. — One thousand feet of the Reading railroad bed thru Clark's valley was washed away today by Stoney creek, which went on a rampage flooding the entire valley and isolating several villages.

Hundreds of telephone poles and several bridges across the creek were washed away, destroying all communication with Singerville, a little town in the valley, 14 miles from here

Walkenmyers dam is threatened hourly by the ever-rising stream.

The valley for more than a mile is covered with water in places twenty feet deep. Many farms bordering the valley are under water and thousands of dollars worth of crops and live stock endangered.

At ten o'clock this morning 3.5 inches of rain had fallen here and it was still pouring. The Susquehanna river has been rising a foot an hour and if the rain continues, the weatherman says there is danger of a serious flood.

All the tributaries of the Susquehanna in this region are beyond their banks.

Many summer cottages are reported to be under water along Stoney Creek, Yellow Breeches and the Conedoginet.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD
THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

KIDNEYS NEED LOTS OF WATER AT TIMES

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

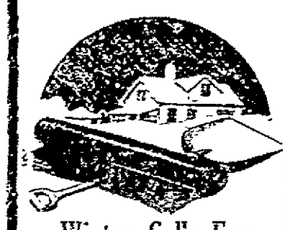

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous Salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Mrs. Miriam ("Ma") Ferguson, of Temple, Texas, Democratic nominee for Governor, is eligible to hold that office, according to a ruling of Judge George Calhoun, of Austin, who refused an injunction to keep her name off the ticket. Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, the former Helen Gould, wrote to the President of the Missouri Pacific Railroad in 1909 to get him to assure her fiance a good executive position, it was brought out in the New York court fight over the $80,000,000 estate of her father, the late Jay Gould. The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Baptist pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New York, is expected to resign his pastorate rather than obey the order of the Presbyterian General Assembly that he accept the Presbyterian confession of faith. Jackie Coogan, American juvenile screen star, furnished vast amusement to Pope Pius, when the latter received him in audience, by telling the Pontiff the Vatican would make a "swell set" for a motion picture.

Pinchot Throws His Support to Sen. LaFollette

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Denouncing the "ex-Progressives" who have questioned the right of Senators LaFollette and Wheeler to the party mantle of Theodore Roosevelt and quoting Lincoln and Roosevelt as forerunners of the LaFollette attack on the powers of the supreme court, Amos Pinchot today made public a long letter in support of the third party ticket and principles.

The letter was given out by the LaFollette headquarters here. It opens with an attack on many of the men who recently signed an attack on the Wisconsin senator's Progressive record and follows with a detailed defense of the third party nominee.

In concluding, Pinchot challenges several of the more prominent "ex-Progressives" to come out in the open support of President Coolidge.

CHICAGO STOCK COMPANY COMING TO THE NEW SIXTH STREET THEATRE FAIR WEEK STARTING MONDAY, OCT. 7TH

The management of the New Sixth Street theatre takes pleasure in announcing to their patrons of this city and vicinity that they have made arrangements with the Chicago Stock Company to play a solid week's engagement at the New Sixth Street theatre, beginning Monday evening, October 7th.

This organization needs no introduction to local theatregoers as it has appeared near here for several years, being an annual visitor to Coshocton.

The Chicago Stock Company acting cast is an unusually strong one and the scenic production is complete in every detail, in fact it requires a seventy foot baggage car to transport the effects.

The plays are all recent New York successes, the engagement being opened Monday evening with George M. Cohan's international laughing success "So This is London," which ran a solid year at the Hudson Theatre in New York and is now in its eighth month at the Prince of Wales Theatre in London. The famous New York successes will run as follows: Avery Hopwood farce, "The Alarm Clock," the last word in laughs, "Twin Beds," the Guy Bolton gay comedy of the movies, "Polly Preferred," and the screaming comedy, "Getting Gertie's Garter."

The advance sale of seats will open at the Sixth Street theatre box office Thursday morning at ten o'clock for the opening production "So This is London."

Discoveries in Lehman Caves Attract Tourists, Scientists

ELY, Nevada, Oct. 1.—As a result of important scientific discoveries made here in the now famous Lehman caves, this little mountain town is fast becoming the mecca of sightseeing tourists from all over the country. The scientific beauty and grandeur of the caves, which have opened up new fields in the study of biology, ethnology and archolology attracted thousands of visitors this year.

Local residents always knew about the caves, but never considered them to be of any particular value. It remained for C. C. Boak to get a bill passed by Congress setting aside the caves as a national monument. Good roads will soon be built for the benefit of tourists. Hotels and garages are already under construction.

At the request of Governor Scrugham, professors from the State University visited the caves and began a prehistoric research which promises to surpass in scientific value anything of its kind in the United States. Fossils of great shrimps, eels and reptiles that apparently existed in the mesozoic age were brought to light after being undiscovered for centuries.

The discovery in the cave of a petrified human skull, believed to be that of a caveman, gave rise to the theory that the spot was the original Garden of Eden. Scientists call the skull the "missing link" in the genealogy of the human family.

Mrs. Davis Recovers Strength

The following statement contained in a letter from Mrs. Alice Davis of Jamestown, N. Y. should bring hope to other women who are in the same condition she was. She says, "I was nervous and weak with pains in my back, no ambition, and utterly discouraged, and could not sit up all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength so I am now running a rooming house and do all the work." Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is pre-eminently successful in overcoming such troubles and it will pay any suffering woman to try it.

Republicans

Republican managers admit, privately, that the Brookhart influence will be no inconsiderable factor in determining where Iowa's 13 electoral votes are going

Iowa along with Nebraska and a few others of the corn belt states, have been classed by political managers of all parties as "doubtful."

In every table of electoral votes that Republican managers have prepared to show that Coolidge and Dawes will have a majority in the electoral college, they have counted on the 13 electoral votes of Iowa and 8 from Nebraska, and well as California's 13.

Simultaneously today with Brookhart's bolt from the ticket, came reports in political circles here that Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, would have "an important announcement before long" and there were also reports that Senator Hiram Johnson, in California may come out for Lafollette.

These later reports could not be confirmed today from any authentic source in Washington, but coming on the heels of the Brookhart deracle they were distinctly discomforting to Republican managers.

Republican leaders were engaged today in seeking to smooth out still another internal squabble in which the candidacy of General Dawes figured. This is in rock ribbed Pennsylvania and concerns differences between Senator Pepper and national chairman William M. Butler and General Dawes

Senator Pepper has cancelled an ambitious speaking tour that he was to have engaged in under the auspices of the national committee. The reason therefor is said to be Senator Pepper's resentment over General Dawes accepting, on his own initiative, and without consulting state leaders, an engagement to address a woman's organization in Philadelphia.

W. Harry Baker, republican state chairman in Pennsylvania, and Senator Pepper had an engagement scheduled with President Coolidge at the white house yesterday but Senator Pepper did not go, altho he was in town.

TUNING IN AND TUNIC-ING EQUALLY POPULAR PASTIMES

WHILE the radio husband is busy tuning in on distant stations, his equally attentive wife has her ear attuned to fashion messages and has taken due cognizance of the fact that the mode of the long "tunique" has been sealed with the approval of fashion leaders on both sides of the Atlantic.

So widespread, from Paris, is the popularity of the tunic, writes Henri Creange, Cheney style authority, that it is difficult to find a dress or even a coat or jacket without at least a tunic effect.

This tendency is exemplified by the chic little dress sketched, which gracefully assumes the appearance of a tunic without its substance. It is aided and abetted in this intent to deceive by the ingenious combination of plain beige colored Krisalkrepe forming the pseudo-tunic, trimmed with a flounce of brown pleated Krisalkrepe. To further set off the two parts of the dress, there is a band of brown embroidery above the flounce. This, of course, is repeated on the long, tight sleeves with their oddly extended cuffs of the brown Krisalkrepe.

Moreover, quite unabashed by its career of duplicity, this dress refuses to add one button more than is necessary, and confines itself to and with a single link button passed through the slit which permits the frock to be slipped over the head.

A dress of this type is well adapted for wear under the new slim coats of the mode, and is, in fact, the classic type of ensemble dress. It would, indeed, be not only perfectly proper, but eminently successful to combine with this dress a seven-eighths coat of brown Krisalkrepe lined with beige.

Ansel's Band at Lake Park Thurs.

With the announcement that Ansel's band of Zanesville will furnish the music for dancing at Coshocton Lake Park Thursday evening, F. D. Johns, manager of Coshocton Lake Park points out that he has finally landed an attraction that local dancers have been requesting all summer.

As it happened, the band was engaged for the entire summer on the same nights that Lake Park dances, so it was impossible to get it before. The organization is composed of eight musicians of ability, and they are expected to produce real dance music.

With the coming of cool weather gas heaters have been placed in the pavilion, and Johns purchased a coal heater Wednesday which will probably be ready for use in the hall Thursday evening. By closing the sides of the pavilion, it is made comfortable despite chilling breezes.

SLEEP AND BEAUTY

ONE contribution all parents can make toward the education of their children without sacrifice or expense is to see to it that they get regular and adequate hours of sleep.

Physicians and neurologists agree that dullness among school children is very often sleepiness or underdevelopment because of insufficient hours of sleep. The parent is as much acquainted as the medical world with the nervous disorders and physical ills which follow too little rest in the adolescent period. Every mother knows that a sleepless baby is a sick baby.

Sir Maurice Craig, London neurologist, has found that American children as a whole are brighter and more active than the children of London because they have their regular sleep every night and the London children do not.

A trend toward nervousness among school children is attributed to irregular and insufficient hours of sleep. Accurate information would probably disclose that the men and women as well as the children of this community average eight hours of sleep nightly and it can not be charged that our school children are dull or underdeveloped.

Every adult knows the value of sleep and the amount he or she, individually, requires for health and maximum mental and physical efficiency. Children cannot be expected to ascertain this for themselves, so it is incumbent upon their parents to learn what is required and provide for it.

The older we become the less sleep our bodies and minds demand. Thomas Edison sleeps only four hours in every twenty-four, he says. Many people find six hours enough. But lest the next generation be one of nervous wrecks the parents of today should make certain that their children receive the maximum number of hours of sleep rather than the minimum they can get along with.

MINDING OUR OWN BUSINESS

IN A LITTLE essay in the current Century, entitled "A Reform to End Reforms," Glenn Frank says:

> In our earnest and honest efforts to be public-spirited we fritter away on all sorts of uplift movements creative energies that would bring far greater benefit to society if we turned their full force into the better performance of the jobs out of which we are getting our bread and butter. * * * The life of the world is moved and molded mainly by the way the work of the world is done. The private businesses of the world are, therefore, better instruments of social service than the public movements of the world. We can be pretty sure that, at any given moment, the real issue we need to face is inside our own job. It is not always the uplifters who uplift the world: it is mainly the men and women who are minding their own business in a creative and consistent way.

At first blush this may seem rather selfish and heartless, but really it is not so. Minding one's own business is, as we are reminded, almost a lost art, the model citizen of our day being "the man who minds other people's business." As a result the business of the world, even the uplift business, is not done, or poorly done. The professional uplifters by no means always uplift—perhaps usually they do not.

There was much truth in one of George Ade's early fables, the moral to which was something like this: "If you would uplift, get underneath." The statement that "the real issue we need to face is inside our own job," is not much more than a reaffirmation of the Carlyle principle: "Your America is here"—that is close at hand—"or nowhere." Men and women are much given to looking and traveling far afield for their work, and thus they neglect the humbler duties that besiege their doors and lie about their path. To those who would appeal to the Golden Rule, Mr. Frank says:

> I do not join Mr. Shaw in his jesting demand that we revise the golden rule; I merely suggest that we stop misinterpreting it and begin following it literally. The one thing that most of us would most like to have "others do unto us" is to let us alone. It is becoming in us, therefore, to let others alone in the normal run of human affairs.

The Golden Rule "is not," it is weightily argued, "a roving commission to busybodies." "Minding one's own business," it is urged, "is in itself the supreme social service," since "if every man minded his own business, social service would be unnecessary, and the army of reformers would have to demobilize." It certainly is true that if there were less minding of other people's business, which is at present a very popular occupation, the world would be much nearer the millennium than it is now. The words "one's own business" have in this connection a very broad significance, and include much more than the mere making of a living. They involve the proper ordering of the individual life, and of its relations under freedom—freedom from the meddling of others, including the government, which is in our day the supreme meddler. The demand to be "let alone in the normal run of human affairs" should be made of government, as well as of neighbors. There is less and less disposition on the part of both neighbors and government to leave the citizen alone, and the result is that he is every year enjoying less and less freedom.

It is even now proposed, and seriously, to give to congress the power to prohibit all persons under eighteen years of age from working. Certain it is that a little of the let alone doctrine, a little of the doctrine of minding one's own business instead of minding the business of others would greatly help matters. Many professional uplifters would be out of a job—and salary—but the people would not be grieved at such an outcome.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 1 — Columbus Circle is a sort of open forum for malcontents, like that of London's Hyde Park. Nightly there are people who address street platforms and soap boxes.

Some are religious zealots, with long hair and bare feet. Others sing praise of single tax, various isms, and other distinctive and disparaging doctrines. Their talks are morbid and gay. One Japanese declares we will be at war by mid-winter.

The orators come from every walk in life. There are grocery clerks, small tradesmen, college professors, students, actors and one is a husky truck driver. They rarely take up collections, and the main idea is simply to "blow off steam."

The police are on hand, but are tolerant and only observe the traffic violations. One man who was growing red-faced in his exhorting pleaded for the world to take up vegetarianism. "I used to be a chronic dyspeptic," he shouted. "Now I can lick any man in the crowd."

His challenge was not accepted. A man in clerical costume talked on the "Psychology of Fear." He said there wasn't a man or woman living who couldn't walk into a den of lions if he or she had absolutely mastered fear.

A woman from the tail of a banjo-torched cart spoke for Birth Control. She wore a jaunty red hat and was becomingly costumed. She could not have been more than 23 years old. "I have left high society," she said, "to go out on the highways and plead this cause."

The open forum usually opens at dusk and at midnight they are still at it, and at the later hour they have their biggest audiences, for they catch the homegoing theatrical crowds. Most of the oratory is mere fiddle-faddle, but all seem tremendously sincere and earnest.

New York streets can be filled and emptied with amazing speed. In a jewelry shop across from the Hippodrome a young bandit was holding up the proprietor who lifted his voice for "Help!" above the racket of the elevated. In two minutes the streets and sidewalks were a compact mass of humanity. All traffic suspended. Then someone from a window cried: "Look out he's going to fire a gun!" and just as quickly the sidewalks and streets emptied. Speaking for myself, I made the basement entrance of a department store in nothing flat.

"What can I show you?" asked a floorwalker, who evidently did not sense my alarm.

"The smelling salts department," I replied. And gravely he piloted me to the drug counter.

Whoops my dear! And if I'd known you were coming I'd have baked a whortle-berry pie. New York is to have a male mannequin show. The idea was first introduced in London, where there was a parade to and fro of men in the latest sartorial splendor. The show will be held in one of the private rooms of a smart hotel. Admittance will be only by special invitation.

A sheet music salesman in a Broadway store was taken to a hospital the other day with nervous exhaustion. He said his nerves had been frazzled by customers coming to him to buy songs, and then asking him: "Would you mind humming this tune for me, please?"

There is one music store in the Times Square district, however, that has eight piano players, ready at all times to play tunes that are wanted. They are paid $50 a week.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

BY DAVID M. CHURCH

LONDON, Oct. 1 — Sir Arthur Conan Doyle regrets Sherlock Holmes.

In his autobiographical "Memories and Adventures," just published, Sir Arthur declares frankly that if he had never conceived the new world-famous Sherlock, perhaps he might have been a greater figure in the literary world.

"All things find their level," Sir Arthur writes, "but I believe that, if I had never touched Holmes, who has tended to obscure my other work my position in literature would be a more commanding one."

Holmes has come to annoy Sir Arthur, and he tells of many embarrassments, even to being addressed as "Sir Sherlock Holmes." Hundreds have written to him inquiring whether he himself was Sherlock Holmes or Dr. Watson.

Sir Arthur confesses that he has no illusions about his own ability as a detective, though he has solved two or three problems that have been submitted to him, but—

"These semi-scientific methods are occasionally labored and slow as compared with those of the rough-and-ready, practical man. Lest I should seem to have been throwing bouquets either to myself or to Mr. Holmes, let me state that when a burglary occurred at the village inn, within a stone's throw of my house, the village constable, with no theories at all, had seized the culprit, while I had got no further than that he was a left-handed man, with nails in his boots."

Sir Arthur talks intimately of many men and things. He describes Lloyd George as "just a plasant, smiling, gray-haired, but very virile gentleman, with twinkling eyes and a roguish smile."

Conan Doyle has much to say of his contemporaries and writes of Barrie:

"Great as are Barrie's plays — and some of them, I think, are very great—I wish he had never written a line for the theatre. The glamour of it, and the—to him—easy success have diverted from literature the man with the purest style of the age. Plays are always ephemeral, however good, and are limited to a few; but Barrie's unborn books might have been an eternal and universal asset of British literature."

J. Saxson Mills has devoted an entire book to Lloyd George and the most dramatic phase of his career in "David Lloyd George, War Minister."

Mills's analysis of Lloyd George is interesting, even tho the author finds him more or less of a contradiction. He declares, however, that Lloyd George found success in the war because he did not see the war as a politician, or a militarist, or an armchair strategist, but rather because he saw the war with the common sense and quickness to learn of the ordinary civilian who became a soldier.

This is but one of many volumes written of the intimate Lloyd George. There will be others, for the career of Lloyd George is unfinished. Will the final book record the tragedy of ultimate failure or lost honors reclaimed?

An interesting volume of poems is on the presses. A young Irishman, H. G. Gallacher, is the author of "Rhymes of the Road." For two years Gallacher was an ordinary laborer at Loch Katrine and is now doing manual work at Callander. The poems, which are in the hands of a publisher, deal mainly with country life. Gallacher has never been to school and is entirely self taught.

Christabel Russell is breaking into the literary world. Her first novel, "Afraid of Love," is being awaited with great interest. If it proves half as spicy as the evidence in her divorce trial it will be a best seller.

Mrs. Russell first won notoriety when she was sued by her husband Hon. John Russell, son of Lord Ampthill. She opened the action, though Russell denied the paternity of Mrs. Russell's son. Though the case was fought through two courts and carried to the House of Lords, Mrs. Russell finally won and established the legitimacy of the child.

Advanced information does not state whether Mrs. Russell's novel is based upon her own experiences.

Present Campaign Will Probably Result in Organization of Liberal and Conservative Party, Publisher Believes

VENTURA, Calif., Oct. 1. — The inevitable readjustment of political parties in America has come, and out of the present campaign may emerge a liberal and a conservative party in the opinion of William Randolph Hearst, the newspaper publisher.

The writer met Mr. Hearst on the train riding out of Los Angeles. He spoke freely answering every question unhesitatingly and later granted permission to publish his views, which constitute a unique analysis of the present campaign.

"I like President Coolidge," he said. "I feel that he is sincere. I believe Mr. Davis has a fine character too. But both these men represent the conception of public affairs agreeable to say the least, to certain elements which today dominate the Republican and Democratic parties. Now that's all right from their viewpoint but it is not all right from the viewpoint of the masses of people whose interests would be better served by liberal spokesmen. The conservatives have a right to the championship of their views but they must not object to the expression by liberals of their views. It would be intolerable in my judgment and in the end injurious to the conservatives themselves if they triumphed and strengthened their hold on the political machinery of our country."

"To what do you attribute the rise of the conservatives to a commanding position in each of the two major parties?" was the next question asked. "Is it due to the necessity for raising funds from businessmen and other sources of financial strength to carry on modern campaigns?"

"Well, partly so," was the reply, "but I think it goes deeper than that. In most of the large cities the political power is held by the Democrats and wherever you have a political machine you have venal interests. The attempt by the conservatives to control both major parties has not been an accident but a part of a deliberate policy in recent years. To my mind it is mistaken from the viewpoint of the conservatives themselves. They should permit the liberals a party thru which to express their policies and programs."

"Do you conceive of the Republican party as the logical conservative instrumentality and the Democratic party as the logical exponent of liberalism?"

"Yes, I do, but unfortunately the Democratic party has not fulfilled its traditional mission. I was born a Democrat. My mother's people came from South Carolina and my father's people from Virginia and my father was elected as a Democrat to the U. S. senate from California. I admire the writings of Jefferson. I find a true liberalism in the speeches of Abraham Lincoln. I have always wanted to be a Democrat and have hoped that my party would keep step with the liberal tendencies of our age. But it has not. The convention in New York last summer illustrates what happened to the liberal elements in the Democratic party. The nomination of Davis was a make-shift—the convention was defeated in its attempts to name a liberal and turned to a conservative in exhaustion."

"How do you think the election will turn?"

"I fully expect," said Mr. Hearst, "that LaFollette will poll a surprisingly large vote. I believe his vote getting power is generally under estimated. I am confident that LaFollette will draw two votes from the Republican party to one that he takes from the Democratic party and in some instances this should be enough to swing certain states to the Democrats. It all depends upon what percentage of the Republican vote is taken by LaFollette but the polls taken thus far show that he is drawing heavily on the Republicans."

At that point the writer reminded Mr. Hearst that the Republican managers have just the opposite idea namely that LaFollette is driving much more support from the Democrats than the Republicans and he remarked that of course, if their conception was right, Coolidge would be elected. The conversation turned to the Ku Klux Klan controversy.

"Religious issues," said Mr. Hearst with emphasis, "should have no place in American politics."

Asked whether he had noted the plank in the Republican state convention in New York, not only condemning the Klan but likewise all attempts to make political capital out of religious divisions, Mr. Hearst said it seemed to him, "a good American plank."

Knowing the publisher's intimate knowledge of New York state politics, the writer inquired whether he thot Governor Smith would defeat Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., or vice versa. Mr. Hearst said,

"Governor Smith has some Democratic impulses and I have no antipathy to him, except as he stands for certain measures which the big enterprises want. But as for young Roosevelt, I doubt if he has any strength of his own in New York state. Whatever strength he has is due to his father's name and I do not think this will be a controlling factor with the people."

Mr. Hearst talked further on "radicalism." He laughingly commented on the change in the public mind on such things as the popular election of U. S. senators which he said was years ago regarded as a radical measure.

He thinks that liberals when entrusted with power do not tear up government by the roots, as is frequently predicted they will do, but they usually when weighed down with responsibility proceed cautiously.

"I am called a radical," concluded Mr. Hearst, "but I don't think I am. I am just a liberal with a recognition of the fact that we must have progress."

LUCK

I had a wondrous streak of luck, on day, when playing cards; ten times or more I gained a buck — the luckiest of bards! "This is," I thot, "an easy way to garner needed dimes, why labor, thru the weary day, to get my prunes and limes? It's plain I am a lucky wight, on whom Dame Fortune smiles, and I shall play by day and night, and heap up wealth in piles." Next day I played another round with graybeards in the store, and I sent up a doleful sound when that punk game was o'er. The roubles I had lately won were vanished from my purse, and I owed Green and Grimes and Dunn more than I could disburse. "You have," I said, "my I. O. U. which I will soon redeem: I'll sell my bus and milk-cow, too, which yields such luscious cream. I'll pawn my hat and eke my gun, and raffle off my hay, that you may promptly have the mon that I have lost this day. But here I vow by good St. James, and by St. Bride I vow that I am done with all such games as we have played just now. Hereafter when I want a plunk, before I trust to luck I'll roam the street and gather junk, and haul it in a truck. I'll carry brickbats in a sack up seven miles of stairs, for luck's a tempter and a fraud that soaks us unawares. I charge you not with crooked tricks, altho I think my thots; but I will pack my bed of bricks to cara my willie-waughts."

CASEY LOSES AIR TROPHY BY 3 MILES

DAYTON, O. Oct. 1.—Casey Jones, who won the on to St. Louis race last year in the international air classic, tho he had won again. He breezed into Wilbur Wright field from Selfridge Field with his tail over his dash and informed the officials that he was "it" again.

The judges checked up and then came the jolt of Casey's life. He had flown a distance of only 197 miles under record time but the conditions called for 200 miles. He was disqualified but not disheartened.

Tuesday afternoon he hopped over to Chaute Field at Rantoul, Illinois, and flew back to Wilbur Wright field, a distance of 234 miles in 103 minutes flat. The judges thot so well of the performance they all allowed him 25% points but reserved the award until all the others cross the rubber.

The round-the-world flyers are headed for Dayton. They are due here at 5:07 Friday p. m. thirteen minutes later they will be the guests of honor at the annual National aeronautic banquet which will be held at the N. C. R. school house. Mayor Frank B. Hall has $1,250 on the head of the barrel for each of the men as a testimonial of good feeling on the part of Dayton for their achievment.

After that Lieut. Jack Harding, aide to the old Viking, Eric Nelson, has other arrangements. "That is nobody's business" said pretty Idella Reussenzehn when she was asked if she would see Harding that evening. In the meantime the sexton is getting ready to ring the wedding bells.

EVEN MONEY STILL HOLDS ON SERIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. — Even money and take your pick was the slogan today of local betters on the world series between the Washington Senators and the New York Giants. In many cases wagers were held up while backers of both teams waited for the short end of 5 to 5 price.

The largest bet made in the last 24 hours was reported by Jack Doyle, the sage of Broadway, who declared he was holding the stakes of a wager of $5,000 against $5,550 with the Senators favored. In addition, G. B. Chandendos & Co. announced that it is holding $20,000 to bet on the Senators at even money, and $10,000 to bet against $14,000 that the Giants will win the opening game.

Frisch's Injury Healing; Third Sacker Is Out

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Optomistic reports came from the headquarters of the New York Giants on the question of whether Frank Frisch, second baseman and captain would be able to play in the first game of the world series at Washington on Saturday.

"Frisch's finger is coming along nicely and I would be surprised if he failed to show in the line-up for the opening game," one official said.

The condition of Heinie Groh, third baseman, who was laid low with an injured knee, was not so satisfactory, however, and it was understood that the Giants were planning to take the field with Fred Lindstrom as his understudy.

Figures Won't Count in World's Series; Breaks and Pitching Decide

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK Oct. 1. — Figures don't lie, says the man who needs a pet phrase in order to prove an argument. Perhaps they don't but sometimes they are guilty of false representation.

Juggling with a star statistic or so leads to the assumption that the New York Giants are immeasurably superior to the Washington Senators on paper. This writer is pleased to doubt it, in spite of the figures.

They show that the Giants, mustering a line-up of their most enthusiastic hitters, have a team average of .314 exclusive of pitchers. A corresponding number of Senators have all for .299. They would seem to run a very bad second. They do not.

Take the rival second basemen, Frisch and Harris, of example. The Giant captain all .3— during the National league season against Harris' .272 in the American league, yet it is extremely doubtful whether Frisch will drive in more runs than Harris when the teams meet. The Washington leader is one of the best men in a pinch now playing baseball.

Move over to shortstop and you have Jackson of the Giants hitting .301 against Peckinpaugh's .269, but Peck is just as dangerous with men ready to score. And it is my impression that you will win ball games with runs.

In the matter of base running, this quartette is a stand-off, more or less, but the same doesn't apply at first base. Whether Judge plays against Kelly or Terry, he will be the more effective man on the bases, in batting. He has an average of .322 against Kelly's .326 and Terry's .246. Obviously, Judge is a superior offensive bet over the McGraw combination.

At third base, Groh outhit Bluege during the regular season, .281 to .274, not enough to make the difference important. However, Heine is a money player and probably will do the more effective hitting if he plays at all. If he doesn't, Bluege will have the edge on Lindstrom, the Giant understudy.

In the Washington outfield, Leibold hit .289, Goslin .343 and Rice .333, which is nothing to look down your nose at. It more than holds it own, with the Giants' record, to wit: Wilson .288, Meusel .309 and Young .358, grantnig that McGraw will not play Kelly in center field in more than half of the games. As a base running combination furthermore, the Giant outfield doesn't compare with the Senators.

Behind the bat, Ruel of the Senators hit .282 against the .326 of Gowdy, who probably will do most of McGraw's catching. But Ruel is much the faster man and again we have the old danger signal if the pinch. Ruel is just as god a man as Gowdy when a hit means runs.

So much for the downright veracity of figures. They are not altogether illuminating, in any case, because it is possible that one club or the other raced easier pitching during the regular season.

They also fail to show that, in spite of their impressive records, the Giants were not hitting as a unit during the late weeks of the season. Frisch, Gowdy, Young and Kelly were the only members of the outfit who hit up to their records right to the wire.

For example, Meusel's record for the season is .309. Yet he was benched because of indifferent hitting. Again, Snyder has an average of .302 but failed to catch more than twice during the last two weeks, because he wasn't hitting the size of his neckband. Wilson, a hitting fool in mid-season, has seen his average shrink to .286. It might have evaporated altogether if he hadn't a plenteous margain to work on.

Boiled down, the answer is this, according to my non-essential opinion: pitching and the breaks will decide the series; simply these and nothing more.

Leon "Goose" Goslin, left fielder and batting demon of the Washington Club, helped the Senators materially to win their first American League pennant.

Five Cities Bid for 1925 Int'l Aviation Races

DAYTON, O., Oct. 1.—Five cities want to entertain the international air races in 1925.

They are St. Paul, Minneapolis, Detroit, Atlantic City and Denver. Each has a wirepulling, leg pulling delegation here and all are on the job day and night.

The national aeronautic Association, which opened informally today at the Miami hotel is considering all five. Decision will be made Friday or Saturday.

Incidentally it has been proposed to continue Frederick B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Company, in his position as the active head of the growing organization.

Entertaining the air races is a man's sized job and Dayton woke up to that fact just today.

Every hotel in the city is booked up to the limit. A call went out for cots to set up in the halls. Twenty five thousand homes have been listed for rooms and still the air race committee on housing is calling for more.

In the meantime racers are arriving hourly and tuning up.

It is going to be the race of all time and—the greatest since Wright brothers cracked the egg at Kitty Hawk, N. C., twenty one years ago next December.

The races get under way tomorrow at Wilbur Wright field where a grand stand one mile long has been built. Within the great field are three courses over which the 12 major events will be flown.

Pilots and planes are here from all sections of the nation. Guests are here representing a number of foreign nations. Major General Mason M. Patrick and Mrs. Patrick are due here from Washington today.

Brig. General William Mitchell, the only flying general in the world, will fly from Washington probably this afternoon while Mrs. Mitchell will come by train.

The General will be the personal representative of President Coolidge and will read a message from the chief executive at the annual session of the National Aeronautic Association Friday night.

Big Celebration for Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Coolidge, as the first fan of the nation, prepared to welcome the Washington Senators, the national capital's first pennant winners. From now until the opening game of the world's series on Saturday, the life of the pennant winners is to be one round of welcoming.

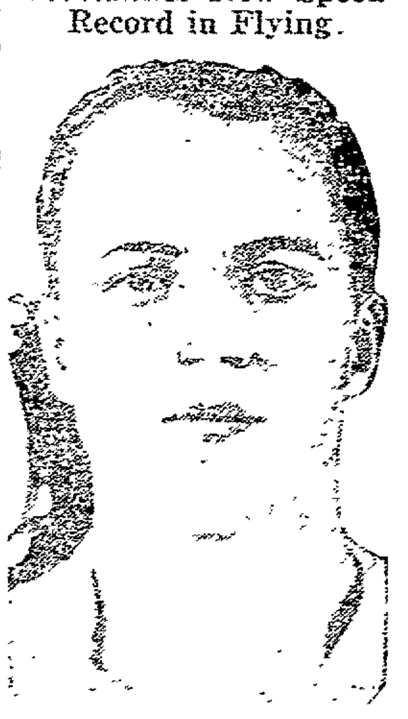

The first baseball parade that historic Pennsylvania-av ever witnessed will wind up on the elipse, south of the white house, where President Coolidge, cabinet officers and other government dignitaries will be in the reviewing stands to meet the victors.

The key to the city will be presented to Manager Bucky Harris, the boy pilot of the Nationals and President Coolidge will make a speech. A municipal dinner will follow tonight.

Gifts of all kinds will be showered on the players, from shoes and shirts donated by business houses to the sedan for Walter Johnson, the money for which was raised by popular subscription.

Distribution of tickets for the first two games of the series probably will begin tomorrow. The demand is enormous and far exceeds the 35,000 capacity of the local park. The business offices of the club are literally swamped with applications.

Establishes New Speed Record in Flying.

LT. DAVID RITTENHOUSE

Beating his own world's record by more than fifty miles an hour, Lieutenant David Rittenhouse, U. S. N., flying a Navy Curtiss seaplane racer over Long Island Sound, attained a speed of 242½ miles an hour. He flew a plane intended to defend the Schneider cup, but England and Italy withdrew their entries from the race, which was to have been flown at Baltimore, Md.

REDUCE TURNS OF WIRE ON TICKLER

Find Correct Amount of Inductance to Use in Feedback Circuit

By Carlton E. Butler, A. M. I. R. E.

The number of turns of wire in a tickler coil or plate variometer determines the amount of energy that is going to be fed back from the output to the input side of the tube The amount of the regenerative feedback can be controlled by rotating the tickler coil or the rotor of the variometer.

When you are tuning in the higher wavelength stations, you will note that the tickler coil or variometer will have to be rotated forward a bit to bring the volume up to the same point that it was on the lower wave length stations. The higher the wave length of the station you tune in on the more the more the tickler dial must be increased.

On the higher wavelength stations the set works all right. On the lower wavelength stations a squeel or whistle is present that is almost impossible to tune out. This is caused by the fact that too many turns of wire are used on the plate variometer or tickler coil. On the higher wavelength stations part of this inductance can be used to good advantage. On the lower stations it is impossible to turn the coil in any position where enough turns are cut out to prevent the tube from oscillating.

Tune in on a high wavelength station and remove a turn of wire at a time from the plate variometer until you reach a stage where you can make the tube oscillate at only a small part of the tickler dial, all other parts of the scale it being impossible to hear whistles when you tune past the station wavelength.

When you tune in on the low wavelength stations now, you do not have so much inductance in your plate circuit and it will be possible to reduce the transfer of energy from the plate to the grid to a point where the tube can be operated in an non-oscillating state. Clear music and speech will result.

Urge Voters

ly 275,000 persons entitled to vote in the coming election. Last year only 132,000, or less than 50 per cent, registered.

Election officials said that the greater interest always displayed in a presidential campaign would to some extent bring out the voters in larger numbers, but the number of chornic "stay-at homes" was constantly increasing.

The efforts of civic organizations were being reinforced by the party machinery of both old parties, and the newly formed committee supporting the candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette for the presidency.

"Civic slackers should be made to feel the same responsibility that was brot home to war-time slackers," the citizens league declared.

CAME HOME TO DIE

"Three years ago I came home thinking 2 or 3 weeks would be my limit to live. I had suffered for 15 years from colic attacks and fever-liver and stomach trouble. I happened to see an advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and purchased a bottle at the drug store and after taking the first dose I felt better than I had for 15 years. I am now in the best of health—thanks to Mayr's Wonderful Remedy." It removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestional ailments, including appendicitis One dose will convince or money refunded at Wimmer-Arnold Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.

Await Word of Air Endurance Test Balloons

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1. — Word was being awaited here today from the giant balloon race started Tuesday in an attempt to break the world's air endurance record. The pilots hoped to remain in the air until late today.

Participating in the attempt are the Goodyear, the Detroit and Washington. The Goodyear left the ground at 4:15 p. m. closely followed by the other bags. A strong southeasterly wind was expected to carry the balloons over Kentucky or Tennessee.

Risko to Meet Burke Tonight

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1—Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, and Marty Burke were to meet tonight in the feature bout of the last open air boxing show at the Olympic arena, just outside Cleveland The fight was originally scheduled for last night, but rain and cold weather caused a postponement. Sunshine this morning gave promise that the weather would be satisfactory and managers of both fighters reported their men on edge.

Eddie Anderson, of Chicago, meets Louis De Arco in the main preliminary. Marty Horvath, of Mansfield, was carded to fight Beany Gershe, of Cleveland, and Ted Smith, Canton, mixes with Tommy Bunch in other events.

MURIELEE DISCOVERS A LOVELY NEW FRUIT.

ONE day when Murielee was on a visit down in Florida she came across a handsome tree in her Uncle's yard covered with broad, velvety, bright-green leaves.

"What a pretty tree you are," she mused. "Wonder what you are, anyway. Dear me, I wish—" a rustle at her feet startled her and Murielee turned around to find a dear little elfin no taller than her knees smiling at her from the grasses.

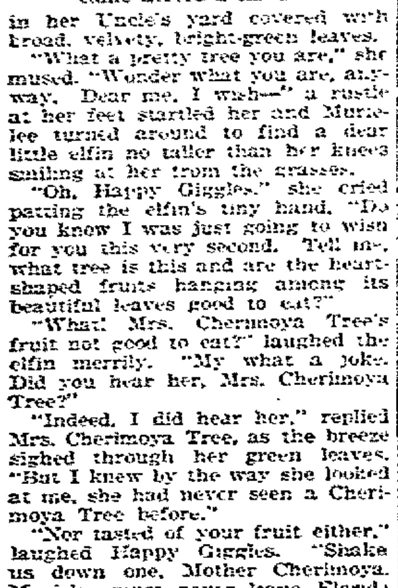

"Oh, Happy Giggles," she cried, patting the elfin's tiny hand. "Do you know I was just going to wish for you this very second. Tell me, what tree is this and are the heart-shaped fruits hanging among its beautiful leaves good to eat?"

"What! Mrs. Chermoya Tree's fruit not good to eat?" laughed the elfin merrily. "My what a joke. Did you hear her, Mrs. Cherimoya Tree?"

"Indeed, I did hear her," replied Mrs. Cherimoya Tree, as the breeze sighed through her green leaves. "But I knew by the way she looked at me, she had never seen a Cherimoya Tree before."

"Nor tasted of your fruit either," laughed Happy Giggles. "Shake us down one, Mother Cherimoya. Murielee must never leave Florida without tasting your gems. Why, Mrs. Cherimoya, Mrs. Pineapple and Mrs. Mangosteen Tree are three of the finest fruit bearers in the world. You won't find near as many Cherimoya Trees in Florida as you will in California, however. But those you do find down here are surely good."

Mrs. Cherimoya Tree shook her

"Indeed, I Did Hear Her."

branches and down came a heart-shaped greenish-brown fruit. Happy Giggles caught it and handed it to Murielee to eat.

"It tastes like a pineapple," Murielee laughed between bites. "I love it! My, there must be at least twenty or thirty seeds in it," and she looked at the little brown seeds in her hand. "Do you suppose they would grow if I sent them back home?"

"I hardly think so," Mrs. Cherimoya Tree sighed. "We have to have a warm climate to do any good. Of course, we do shed our leaves in the Winter months, but I don't believe we could stand very cold weather. We belong to warm climates. But there's nothing like trying. Come out any time you want one of my fruits and I'll drop one down to you if you like them."

"I surely will," laughed Murielee, "for I think they are delicious. I like this white custard-like pulp."

"Some folks call Mrs. Cherimoya Tree, a Pond Apple," said Happy Giggles. "But she doesn't object so long as they like what she has to offer them."

"There's nothing in a name anyway," laughed Murielee. "And I like your fruit and will come every day for one if I may," and thinking Happy Giggles and Mrs. Cherimoya Tree, Murielee ran to meet her Uncle, whom she saw coming down the road.

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Decision Madge Made About Hugh Grantland.

AS if controlled by something entirely outside myself, I sprang to my feet at my boy's call and rushed to the door.

"Mother's here, Junior," I said through its panels, "but I can't come out to you now. Run away and play with Marion until I come."

I did not analyze the emotion within me which peremptorily bade this dismissal of my little lad. Indeed, I dared not. I knew only that I could not talk to my child—and Dicky's—until I had threshed out with myself the course I meant to pursue concerning the queer frightening letter from Hugh Grantland that lay in my hands.

Not that there was any memory of speech or word in all my association with Hugh Grantland which would have caused me to lower my eyes ever so slightly before either Junior's clear gaze or his father's critical one. But there were memories of that unusual friendship, which, while altogether innocent, were yet strangely disturbing, even poignant, if I accepted as truth the letter in my hands.

I felt that I must drag them out from the recesses of my soul, face them squarely and forever banish them unless I could find in them some spark of an idea which might aid me in solving the mystery of the letter Major Grantland had written me.

My little lad's voice sounded again. "But I want you, Mama!"

The pleading tones tugged at my heart insistently. But something even more important than my desire to think out my problem, was now involved. I am trying to teach Junior to know that teasing will never secure the granting of a request, and my voice was firm though tender, as I answered him.

"If You Tease——"

"Junior," I said slowly and clearly, "if you tease, I shall not come to play with you all day. But if you obey me now, it will be only a few minutes before I come to you."

There was a silence of a few seconds while Junior evidently weighed the pros and cons of my ultimatum. Then with an audible little sigh which came near to breaking down my determination, he accepted the inevitable.

"All right," he said soberly, and I heard his reluctant little feet walking slowly toward the stairs.

A sudden resentment toward the insensate letter in my hand shook me. Because of it, I had shut my idolized little lad away from me for the first time in his life—then with a sudden remorseful flash of memory, I faced the truth that my baby boy would have been forever lost to me had it not been for the great heart and brain and dogged persistence of the man who had penned the strange letter to me.

I had forgiven Dicky long ago for his part in that awful time, but I could not forget that it was his absence on a motor outing with Edith Fairfax which made it possible for Grace Draper to spirit away our baby. And I had had plenty of opportunity to contrast that negligence with the tireless furious energy of Hugh Grantland when he had rushed to us upon the receipt of my message to him—an energy that never had flagged until he put Junior in my arms.

Then, only waiting to assure me that every time he changed his address in his adventurous life he would send me a card, he had gone out of my life again quietly, unobtrusively.

I had not seen him since, and so absorbed had I become in my own affairs that I had not realized the cessation of the postal cards some months before the receipt of the letter.

Surely I owed it to this tried friend to make some effort to pierce the veil shrouding his exit from my life. Yet, where to begin. I had heard the stories concerning his mysterious past in which probably lay the explanation of the letter, but the only reference I ever had heard Hugh Grantland make to his home or people—ah! how clearly the memory came back to me!

A Wild Rose Memory.

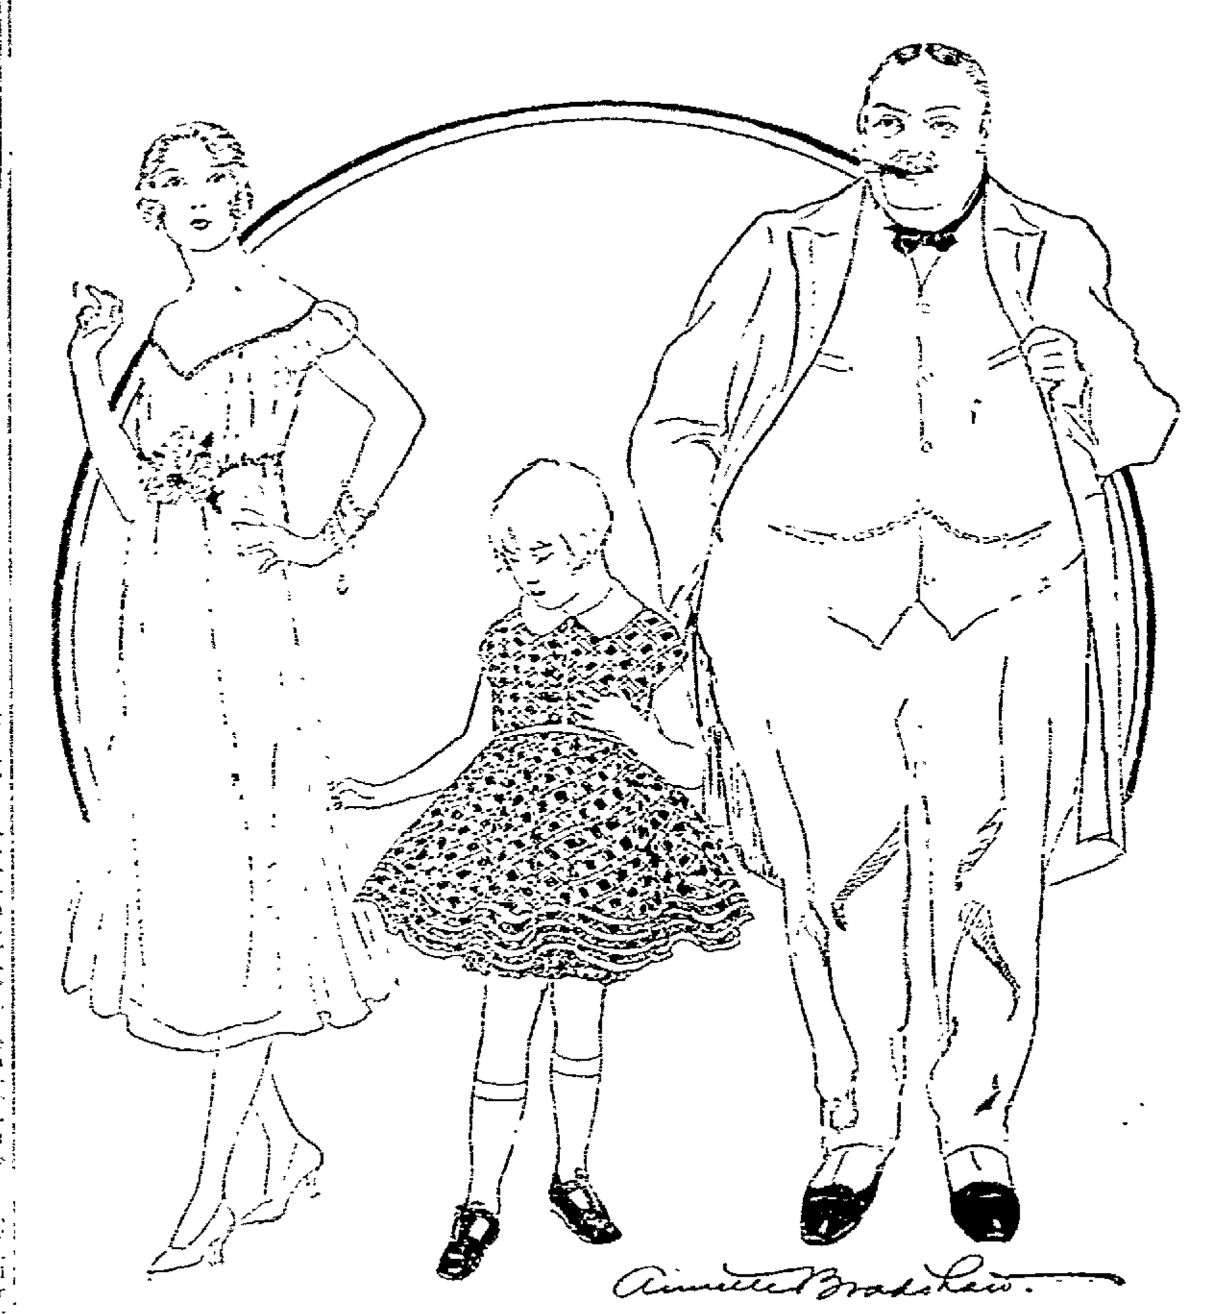

An exigency of our war work had put me under his escort along a woodland path bordering the railroad. It was June, and the scent of wild roses— it seemed as if the delicate odor was fresh in my nostrils even now— was all around us. The tall young officer turned his flashlight upon the bushes beside the path, plucked an exquisite cluster, wrapped it in his handkerchief to protect my fingers from the thorns and handed it to me.

"They were my mother's favorite flower," he said simply, and in his voice was the heartbreak of a boy who had been forbidden to see his mother in life or death.

There was something more subtle in his voice also, an inflection which told me that never before had he coupled his thoughts of his mother with those of any woman—I flushed at the memory of that inflection, and of the look in his face which the flashlight had betrayed to me.

There was nothing in that memory, however, to give me any clue to any family conditions surrounding him. But with the realization that of all men in the world—save Dicky or my father—I owed to Hugh Grantland most, at the least, an effort to solve the mystery concerning him, I rose to my feet, just as Dicky's knock sounded imperatively upon my door.

AFTER YEARS OF LOWER LIFE THE FAMILY'S WAIST LINES MOVE UP —BUT ONLY TWO ARE IN THE VERY LATEST FASHION

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A Key to Popularity

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

WERE you visiting this Summer or did you stay at home and receive visitors?

It may be that both fortunes have been yours. There are all degrees of visitors. Men as a rule do not make great successes when they go a-visiting, possibly they are too much absorbed in their own affairs, and then men like to have an easy time in camp or on the road without the fuss and feathers of dress, which play so large a part in the programme of the ordinary visitor.

Girls make the very best visitors. They go away from home expecting enjoyment, and as a rule, they give pleasure every day while they are in their new environment.

Gladys is the most successful visitor I know. Perhaps it is because she has the capacity of enjoyment to such a great degree. She is easily amused, she likes music and dancing, and she's a clever talker and everyone in the family has a happy time when Gladys comes visiting.

Not Beautiful, But Loved

Aunt Sophronia, in the early Summer, had a severe disciplinary sorrow. Her dressmaker spoiled her one beautiful new costume for the Summer, and Aunt Sophronia could not afford to get another.

She sat and mourned over the charming creation of mauve which was pretty when not worn, because of its color and the trimmings that adorned it, but once donned—why, the whole effect was tragic!

There had been a great attempt to recreate the gown, but all to no effect. Everyone in the family, and among Aunt Sophronia's intimate friends, had become tired of hearing the sorrowful story of disappointment.

When Gladys came Aunt Sophronia found a sympathetic listener to her tale of woe, for hours she sat and told all of the odds and ends of the tragic happening and Gladys really understood the full meaning of the story. Gladys even tried to remedy the defects in the construction of the gown, but failed miserably, and so after awhile Aunt Sophronia became reconciled to the facts in the case and enjoyed the visit of Gladys really and truly from that time on.

This episode did not worry our visitor. She danced just as lightly and sang just as happily after a siege with Aunt Sophronia.

We all enjoyed the singing of Gladys, although her voice is but a sweet soprano with little power, yet she has great expression when she sings, and she can lead a jolly chorus in the most charming way and make everybody within hearing join in, too.

What a difference there is in singers about this! Some of them make everybody eagerly join in the song if they know it, and if not, in a few minutes they learn it under the tutelage of the joyous Gladys, and Uncle Joe says that he has determined to learn to dance if Gladys will take him in charge. This announcement was not made until just as our visitor was going away. When she next comes Uncle Joe declares he will learn to two-step if it takes all Summer, and Gladys joyously laughed over the acquisition of her sixty-years-old suitor.

Lovely and Yet Unloved

It was the same everywhere. Children and old people and all in between loved our visitor, and we are all waiting for her to come again. It is the joyous spirit which loves and appreciates the world and everyone in it which makes Gladys such a success at home or abroad. I hope you had some such visitor during the Summer, but I have my doubts.

I am thinking of another guest who has been staying with some friends of mine. A beautiful girl is Louise, but restless, easily discouraged, not at all able to take upon herself the joys and sorrows of others. Beautifully dressed and with charming manners, one would think Louise would be welcome everywhere, but so stiff and uncompromising is her attitude in every way that I fear she has outworn her welcome in the delightful house where she is visiting.

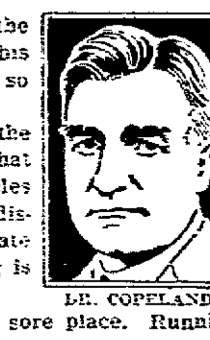

Louise is thinking of herself, while Gladys evidently thinks not of herself at all, so one of them makes no impression of joy and happiness in the house while the other fills it full of life and beauty.

How certainly character registers in every episode of life.

What to Do to Banish A Distressing Sore Throat

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND.

YESTERDAY I told you something about the anatomy of the throat. When you know this it helps to make clear why sore throat is so common.

The main support of the sides and front of the throat are the muscles of the neck. Anything that interferes with the free play of these active muscles will give you vague and uncertain feelings of discomfort in the throat. It may be difficult to locate or define the trouble. You just know something is wrong and that's all.

By feeling around on the outside you find a sore place. Running the finger up and down, the soreness may be found to follow one particular muscle.

Such a sore throat as this is often referred to as rheumatic, or as "rheumatism of the throat." It has all the causes of the other forms of rheumatism.

One of the most common of all human ailments is tonsilitis. Of this there are several varieties. It may take the form of simple swelling and redness, or, associated with these symptoms, there may be white patches on the tonsils. Then we call the trouble "follicular tonsilitis."

When the infection is of a different type, there may develop an abscess in the tonsil. Lots of pus may form, the affected tonsil swells up to great size, almost completely filling the throat. The tonsil tissues are swollen and tense. There may be high fever and great prostration. This describes what we usually refer to as "quinsy" or "quinsy sore throat."

Some persons are susceptible to sore throat. One attack is speedily followed by another. The quinsy may reappear every Spring and Fall.

You must give consideration to a lot of things in the cure of repeated sore throats. First, find out what is the condition of the mouth.

Decayed teeth and abscesses at their roots account for the presence of germs that may infect the tonsils. Pussy gums, often called "Riggs disease," is another ailment which is a menace to health.

You cannot have a focus of pus development without danger to your health. No life is safe if somewhere in the body the germs of disease are being born every minute. Not only, then, to escape sore throat, but to save your health you must get rid of local infections.

The tongue may carry debris and the germs of disease. You haven't finished your toilet when you scrub your teeth. You must scrape and clean the tongue, too.

If your throat is sore a dose of salts or of castor oil will be a good start towards a cure.

For the soreness and to relieve the congestion, bicarbonate of soda in powder or as a gargle, will greatly help.

One of the best gargles for any form of sore throat in the early stages, is the ammoniated tincture of guaiacum. A teaspoonful in half a glassful of hot water or hot milk, used as a gargle and half the quantity swallowed, will do you much good.

Answers to Health Questions

W. E. A. Q.—What causes my five-year-old daughter to have a very offensive breath in the mornings?

2.—When she is eating she clears her throat constantly. What would you advise?

A.—This condition might be caused by diseased tonsils and adenoids, decayed teeth, or by a catarrhal condition. Have your doctor suggest treatment when he has examined her.

2.—This is probably due to catarrh.

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

What Clive Did to Give the Empire of India to England.

ROBERT CLIVE was the son of a British gentleman whose income was so small that he had to practise law to eke it out. At the age of eighteen the boy was sent to India as an accountant in the service of the British East India Company.

At that time, 1742, India was still nominally ruled by the Great Mogul, but was actually a group of states under native rulers. The English, French, Portugese and Dutch were there on sufferance, each having zones in which they were free to trade. The merchants of the East India Company were given a few soldiers by the British government to protect them.

The various companies were continually encroaching upon one another and securing favor with the native rulers by helping them in their wars.

Young Clive chafed under his work as a bookkeeper and induced Major Lawrence, commander of the English soldiers in Madras, to appoint him an ensign in his forces. Clive quickly distinguished himself and was soon appointed to a captaincy.

He first won fame when with three hundred native troops and two hundred Europeans, he defended Arcot for fifty days against Chanda Sahib and a big army so determinedly that they raised the siege.

His next great exploit was to cross India and punish the Bengalese ruler who had taken Calcutta and put the English prisoners into the "black hole" from which only twenty-three came out alive.

With only 600 British soldiers, eight hundred native troops and five hundred sailors, Clive smashed an Indian army of 34,000 men in his campaign to retake Calcutta.

Then making an alliance with the claimant to the throne of Bengal, Clive defeated the Nawab or ruler at Plassey. As a result of this great battle he was able to make treaties which gave all Eastern India to the British company as ruler, putting thirty million inhabitants under their control. No longer did the company have to work through native rulers. And Clive was created Baron Clive of Plassey, when the news reached England.

Clive, all this time, though holding a commission in the British army, was actually working for a trading company. He had received presents from native rulers for assistance given them amounting to a vast sum, and distributed a large amount among his officers and men, as well as securing to the company an income far above what it had ever been.

Nevertheless, Clive came near being impeached by the British parliament led by General John Burgoyne, who afterward lost an Empire in America for England by surrendering to Gates at Saratoga. Parliament after a long and wordy session, took no action.

Clive was broken in health from his many years in India and took his troubles in England very much to heart. Suddenly the nation was shocked to hear that the great man had committed suicide.

Clive had done more for his country than any soldier till Wellington, and more for India than any statesman in history. His death occurred on November 22, 1774.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Smart Afternoon Gown.

PAM came bouncing into the manikin's room this afternoon.

"What do you think has happened?" she asked in a most excited tone.

"How should I know?" I returned coolly.

"You shouldn't," she agreed. "But it's wonderful."

"What is it?" I asked, for I was really dying to find out.

"Madame has accepted my design for the afternoon dress," she announced.

I was all agog immediately.

"You mean the [illegible] you did yesterday?" I asked.

"Yes," Pam answered. "The [illegible]

"[illegible] would be a beauty. I simply sketched it roughly and took it to Madame. She said she liked it a lot."

Pam paused and I urged her to go on.

"Well, Madame called me into her office today," Pam continued, in a voice full of breathless excitement. "She told me she had decided to use the design for our fashion opening, and that she wanted to pay me for it."

Then she produced the sketch and proceeded to explain it to me.

"The materials are black satin and pearl gray chiffon," Pam told me.

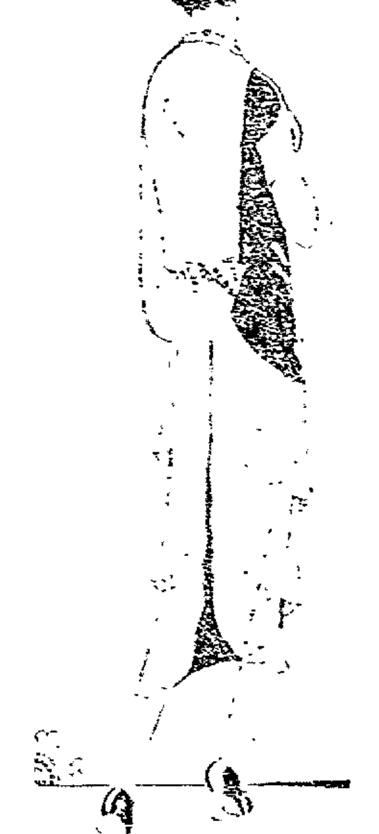

I remarked that Madame must have liked the plan.

"She thought the material combination was excellent," said Pam modestly. "And she was much impressed with the little emerald green bow I put at the back," Pam added.

"You see, the black satin makes practically the entire [illegible]," she said. "Except that the [illegible] of chiffon forms the back of the waist [illegible]."

"[illegible] the back [illegible]," I remarked.

"It [illegible] over the waist, so that there [illegible] two layers of chiffon at the back," Pam explained. "The green bow comes [illegible] she added. "It [illegible] in front and appears only at the back."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—Should a young girl call attention to the fact when a young man walks on the wrong side of her?

2.—Should a young man walk in between two young ladies or the outside?

3.—When strange young men start a [illegible] should we answer them or simply ignore them?

4.—If a young man kisses a young girl by force would it be proper, under the circumstances, to slap him?

PUZZLED COOKY and MICKEY.

PUZZLED COOKY AND MICKEY: 1.—No, she should not. But she can manage things so that the young man will be on the outside.

2.—The young man should always walk on the outside.

3.—By all means, ignore him.

4.—The young lady should tell the young man what she thinks of his conduct and if she thinks that he will repeat it, she should not go out with him again, but it would be hardly ladylike to slap him.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving Some of the Etiquette Problems of Correspondence.

THERE is nothing that stamps our breeding more certainly than the stationery we use. The care with which we stock the family and individual writing desks [illegible] the habits of our children in this important detail. The old-fashioned method of buying a good quality of Irish linen or bond paper by the pound for family use was a good one and still prevails in many conservative households. Its use is always correct.

Mothers feel that it is always of importance to have their daughters' desks properly fitted, but too often their sons are neglected in this way and the general library or sitting room desk is considered sufficient for their needs. This is a great mistake, for boys need the same training in this way that girls are given, and they need a desk and privacy for their own correspondence and papers and are entitled to that consideration.

Cream white Irish linen or bond paper, pale gray or soft tan in shade if preferred, the sheets eight by five and a half inches, envelopes four by five and a half inches, is standard and correct. If there is no crest or monogram for which a die must be made, the address of the home may be used across the top of the sheets two and a half inches from the top. A die will be needed for this, and it is best in black lettering or marine blue. Correspondence cards are always needed and they should be of a size to fit the envelopes.

Old-fashioned note paper of diminutive size is of the past, but if the family has a great many social obligations, note paper one size smaller to match the regular paper may be kept for special use.

There is a fad just now for very large envelopes with non-folding paper sheets to fit. The lining of the envelopes is as gay as a futurist painting. Women who want to advertise their freakishness, or would-be originality, are using this. Then there is a French paper in ciel blue with "bleeded" border of deeper shade that is a fad of the moment. Embossed paper in imitation leather or tree bark, rough paper with torn edges, the paper that is sheet and envelope in one, the very thin onion skin paper that now appears in pale green with deep green lined envelopes—all these things are a passing fashion and their use is open to the criticism of the conservative buyer. Special paper for men folds once and fits in large rectangular envelopes.

If we supply our children with the accepted and correct stationery, they will form the habit of its use. In after years, if they choose to adopt the fads of the moment, that is up to them—we at least have done our best, and very likely they will return to the fold after a few canters in the field of passing fashion.

Coolidge Nice

in their power to find corruption in his administration, but he emerged clean and free of dirt. The only man arrested was a Republican.

"Now look at the record of the present administration. Three United States cabinet officers dismissed, the head of the veteran's bureau forced out of office, a congressman sentenced to the penitentiary. No wonder the people hesitate to vote to permit a continuation of that kind of government.

"I don't charge Coolidge with any crime. In fact I think he is a rather nice little man. But the Coolidge that the people have learned to know from a favorable press and propaganda is a myth. He is not the strong forceful character that he is pictured. He is just a nice little man, owned and controlled by Mellon and the big interests of the country.

"The Republicans are afraid to show him. They keep him hidden from the voters, blowing him to speak over the radio, or issue written statements occasionally. Americans have a right to demand to see him and size him up. They don't want absent treatment now.

"A party to ask your support, must have honesty and sincerity. The Republicans have neither. It is time for a complete housecleaning in Washington. I believe the women of the country will take the lead in turning out this corrupt administration.

"The Republicans are insincere in their refusal to establish foreign markets and in the same breath advocating international cooperation. What are they offering the farmers? Another investigation!"

Congressman Aswell then ridiculed the alleged Republican picture of the dire results of LaFollette's success. He declared they were merely using that "bunk" to distract attention from real issues.

"The Republicans warn that LaFollette will put the red flag over this country and change the constitution. LaFollette is not sincere in his effort to effect a change in the constitution. He shows that by not trying to elect a congress. Without the support of congress, he could do nothing even if elected. That is just one of his talking points, and he is at liberty to talk on anything. But the Republicans are seizing on it to turn away from the main issues.

"The Republicans are insincere in the warning that if Coolidge isn't elected the whole country will be in danger. The way to keep down a third party isn't to elect him but defeat him. Four more years of an administration like the present one would just inflame the radicals to a greater extent and increase their strength. Elect John W. Davis and the Democratic ticket.

"Then you will get honesty, equality and justice that will pacify and satisfy America.

"The Republicans have no party unity. The president and congress face in opposite directions. Coolidge's own recommendations are turned down, and in retaliation, he vetoes measures sent to him by congress."

Taking up LaFollette's case Congressman Aswell declared, "The American Federation may endorse LaFollette but the intelligent laborer knows LaFollette is not the man for him. His insincerity is apparent. He is making no effort to elect a congress, and without a congrss he could do nothing He would be a menace to labor. The Democrats are offering labor the real progressive platform."

Aswell delared he had served with J. W. Davis in congress, and had learned to like him as a man and admire him for his ability. He declared the Democratic nominee had demonstrated his ability to lead in many ways. No man has so challenged the imagination of the people before, or grown so rapidly in public esteem he declared. Within the past few days, Aswess said, avis has literally swept the opposition off its feet, and will continue to do so in the future.

Mrs. Mary Tully of Columbus, was then introduced, and following up Aswell's talk, she plead for thot in choosing candidates.

"Lack of thot is the most direful calamity that has overcome our people. It is absolutely necessary that we decide between the facts' these political speakers give us. One man tells us one thing, the next one tells the exact opposite. Which one is spreading propaganda? Which one is fooling us? We must think. Measure the speakers and what they tell us with what we know, and then come to a decision."

She went on to discuss state issues then, not advocation taking a certain position so much as recommending careful thot on the questions.

Mr. Valentine's address followed along the line of Congressman Aswell's on national issues. He also took up a discussion of the Ohio campaign, and urged a comparison of the records of Davis and Donahey. Such a comparison, he believes, will be advantageous to Donahey. Franklinton, where he resides, is strong for Donahey, he declared.

The meeting Tuesday evening was the first open political meeting in Coshocton-o during this campaign. So far as could be learned Wednesday, no others are scheduled for the immediate future altho both parties expect to bring in a number of noted orators before the campaign is ended.

GALE TAKES NINE LIVES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1—Nine persons dead, hundreds of homes demolished, mines filled with water, bridges washed away and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed was the toll of the fierce wind and rainstorm which swept eastern Pennsylvania for 48 hours before spending its final fury last night.

Six of the victims were drowned, one a woman, and three killed.

The fireman and brakeman on a freight engine were killed at Girard Manor, near Bloomsburg, when heavy rains loosed a huge pile of earth and rocks on a mountainside which slid down and partially buried the engine and destroyed the track for hundreds of yards.

The dead railroad men are Edward Keller, brakeman and W. H. Linn, Fireman, both of Catawissa.

Two men were drowned at North Chunk when a retaining wall along North Chunk creek gave away. They were Henry Herrman, who is a contractore, and Louis Eichhoff, his assistant. William Collins was drowned at Wilkesbarre when his motor car plunged into a creek at Tunkhannock.

Lincoln Travis was electrocuted at Wyoming, near Wilkesbarre by a live wire blown down by the storm. Mrs. Agnes Notosh was drowned in a little creek at her home near Miners Mill, while her young son looked on. Two others were drowned near Jermyn, near Scranton, when a bridge gave way.

Mining operations in many parts of Schuylkill valley and around Nanticoke City will be suspended for several days because of water in the mines.

foundation.

When asked if he would support Coolidge and Dawes during the present campaign, Norris declared that his attitude was one of nonpartisanship and individual responsibility rather than party solidarity and control.

His position, the senator said, was that expreessed in his speech at Grand Island, Nebr. In that speech Norris declared that partisanship was the worst evil of government and that party control was the expressed wish of the few and not of the majority of a party's membership.

DESMOINES, Iowa, Oct. 1—Following Senator Smith W. Brookhart's startling denunciation of General Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential nominee, B. B. Bunquist, chairman of the Iowa state Republican committee, has called a meting of the state committee tomorrow. At this meeting steps may be taken to censure Brookhart.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1—"I'm attending to my own job in my own way," Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, told International News Service over the long distance telephone from Camp Perry, Ohio this afternoon when asked if he had anything to say in answer to criticisms from party leaders on his demand that Charles G. Dawes be withdrawn as vice presidential candidate.

"My statement speaks for itself," he continued. "I will elaborate upon it when I speak in Des Moines Friday night, if at that time I think I have not already made myself clear."

Asked if reports that he was soon to announce his support of the LaFollette-Wheeler presidential ticket were true, he replied he had "nothing to say at this time.

"I understand that thoroughly," was his only comment when told that the Republican state committee of his home state might take steps to censure him at a meeting tomorrow.

"I thing I've made my position very clear," Brookhart said. "However, some things may come after I reach home that may cause me to elaborate further. If they do, then that will be the time to speak."

Senator Brookhart is at Camp Perry, attending the closing days of the national rifle shooting tournament. An expert shot himself, he spent the day following the issuance of his statement watching others try their skill at the target.

Brookhart said he would leave Camp Perry for Des Moines tonight.

JAP ACT NOT INFLUENCED BY U. S. LAW

TOKIO, Oct. 1.—Foreign Minister Shidehara today announced that "Japan has no intention of submitting the American immigration problem to the league of nations for odjudication," in an interview with International News Service.

"Japan's objection to the original arbitration at the Genera conference was a matter of principle, Shidehara said.

"The league was created to minimize the chances of war. If this aim be ideally realized, league competency should as a matter of principle be extended to all varieties of differences between nations.

"Our stand was not at all inspired by the ulterior intention of lining up the world's national against America in connection with the enactment of Japanese exclusion provisions of the immigration law."

The foreign office has yet not received the details of the compromise effected at the league meeting altho unofficiall accounts of the amendment appearing in the local press were received so favorably that an approval of the draft is expected.

Industrial School Now Made Issue

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1.—Assertion that "since the removal of Mrs. Mae Stannard, as head of the Girls' Industrial school at Delaware, by Governor Donahey on the grounds of incapability and unfitness, she has seen fit to make addresses thuout the state, representing herself as a martyr," is contained in a statement issued today from Democratic state headquarters.

"The Republican state committee has made a campaign issue of it and, therefore, it is necessary for the Democratic committee to present the true facts before the people of the state," the statement continues. "A complete resume of the testimony and other data concerning Mrs. Stannard's trial is being compiled by the Democratic state executive committee."

In conjuction with its statement the Democratic committee made public copies of two letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Stanard and purporting to show "the kind of correspondence that characterized her administration of the institution," one copy was of an alleged communication to a girl inmate of the school and the other to the girl's mother.

individual," Markham said. "Private property is the cornerstone of our industrial structure. We have never favored government ownership as a national policy and therefore we have never been called upon to decide definitely just how far it should go. If the railroads are taken over by the government, we must face the fact that the big step in reversing our old settled policy will have been taken and there will be no stopping the force once we have let it loose."

"If there is no particular reason why the government s hould not own and run the railroads, is there any reason why it should not take over also the banks, stores, factories and firms until all of us are government employes and the ideal soviet is attained?"
